Separate Storage for Ammonia.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. FORT WAYNE, Ind., Oct. 22.-The Board of Public Safety adopted an order last Lower Michigan-Fair on Friday with night requiring all factories using ammonia in any form to provide a brick storage house, with iron doors, for it, apart from warmer on Saturday; fresh northwest the factory buildings. The order was inspired by the recent narrow escape of a number of firemen in fighting the fire at the Eckert packing house. There were two storage tanks in the ceiling which burst just before the firemen entered the building. Had not the hose burst as the firemen reached the door they would have been inside and would have perished, as the fumes filled the atmosphere. The board instructed the department not to attempt to save the property of any factory disregarding the order.

Three Homes Entered and Much Booty

Taken, but More Overlooked. special to the Indianapolis Journal. LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 22.-Burglaries that have followed each other in rapid succession are causing the police authorities here much concern, and, despite deterto put an end to them, they have thus far proved baffling to the police.

Last night three homes were entered and robbed, and in all of the cases the intruders showed themselves to be familiar with their surroundings. The Columbia-street residence of Mel W. Earl, deputy county clerk, was entered by a lone burglar, who opened a window. The thief overlooked valuable silverware in the dining room and made straight for the bedroom in which Mr. and Mrs. Earl were sleeping. He took Mr. Earl's coat and vest, leaving his trousers, which contained $100 in cash. The burglar, however, secured a valuable gold watch, bank notes and checks aggregating in value $250, which were in the coat. Today some letters and the bank book were found in an adjoining yard.

A second robbery was committed at the nome of Frank Loeffler, secretary of the Schwab safe and lock works, over a mile from the scene of the Earl robbery. It was between 4 and 5 o'clock this morning that a burglar entered the Loeffler home through a window. He got into the sleep-ing room and seized Mr. Loeffler's clothing, which he took to the yard and searched. In his flight he dropped a wallet containing $300 in cash. He secured a gold watch and other articles of value. The home of Ed Miller, on Grove street was robbed of money and valuables. Other homes were robbed, Chief Harrison says, out the robberies have not been reported.

STORIES OF SUCCESS TOLD AT RE-CENT NASHVILLE MEETING.

Better Chance To-Day for the Colored Man Than Ever Before-Interesting Experiences.

Nashville Letter in New York Post. The paths of real success open to the negroes of this country were pointed out by conservative men of their own race at the recently adjourned session of the National Negro Business League. business was established in 1865, read this "I came to Nashville with my wife in 1865 with only one suit of clothes and $42 cash in my pocket. I began business as a retail merchant, with my wife as my assistant. I asked my bookkeeper to give me a statement to-day of my shipments, and I find that I have shipped north, east, south and west within the last six months goods to the amount of $50,000.

My advice to young negro men is (1) be honest; (2) work hard and save what you get; (3) place no price on your labor until you are master, and never say that you can't 'do.' " He spoke of the large number of fowls he handled. A tall black man with a serious face stood up: "Mr. President, will the speaker tell us where he gets all them chickens?" Winter was forced to sit down, covered with inextinguishable laughter. IN THE DELTA.

He got a job hauling brick and sand, for which he was paid 50 cents a day. He continued at this work for several months, until he had saved $56, when he determined to go into business on his own account. When he had hired a tiny storeroom and stocked it with merchandise his capital was exhausted. By small degrees he prospered and got the confidence of his neighbors. At first he sold only to his own people. Business in the Delta is done on a longterm credit basis. He was thrown all aback and was without resources. He had so armly established his credit and reputation for honesty that some white merchants in propriating to his own use $42 belonging to the town ("my white folks," he called the employers. The bookkeeper recently had them), advanced, without security, $8,000 to put him on his feet. Since that time he has prospered amazingly, doing a business of 25,000 yearly. His store is on the main street in Clarksdale, in the same bu with the largest bank in the community. Besides his business he owns two planta-tions and raises 150 bales of cotton yearly. "I have never been hampered because of my color," he said. "Since I have been in my color," he said. SUCCESSFUL MISSISSIPPI FARMER. "I was born in Virginia, forty-five years ago, and when I was a boy moved with my folks to North Carolina. I had to start to work in the fields as soon as I was big enough, and until ten years ago I stuck to that kind of work. I didn't save any money, and my wife and children didn't have anything except what they just had to have to live on. I moved around from place to place, but didn't seem to do better. Then I emigrated to Mississippi. The man I went to work for had paid my fare, and I had to work it out on his place. Some of the negroes used to call me 'Convict,' and make fun of my children, because their daddy was a convict. Now, them same negroes lift their hats when l come down the road, and says, 'Good mawnin', Mister Wingfield, I hope I sees you well. "After working three years on shares with the man I was farming with, I had saved $500. Then I bought 100 acres of land on credit, paid for it in three years, and bought 217 acres more, paying cash for it. Next thing I done, I bought my home and paid $2,000 cash for it. Then I bought a business lot and built a store in town. Now I own seven lots in town and a plantation of 377 acres, with 200 acres under cultivation. I made 134 bales of cotton last year

I was a mattress maker given a hearing before Commissioner Ellis by trade, and sometimes I had work and again I didn't. I didn't save but a little money, and when I was out of work all that I had put away would have to go. Nine years ago I was thrown out of work when I had $90 saved up. I couldn't get a job anywhere, and all of a sudden I thought would go into business for myself. I leased a vacant lot for a year at $6 a month. Then I got some old lumber and built a little shed to work under. I made to pay cash for everything I bought, even from the auxiliary board paid a visit to the it was only a spool of thread. I am now doing a business of about $20,000 a year. I can buy goods on credit from any merchant in town, and my bank will extend me any accommodations they extend to any merchant or manufacturer. Over 95 per cent. of my customers are white people. I owe my success entirely to them. They were generous, and gave me credit and time when I first began, and I couldn't have done anything without their aid." OHIO NEGRO PROGRESS.

Prof. Charles Alexander, of Wilberforce University, Wilberforce, O., representing the Xenia Negro Commercial Association. to name his native authors, will probably said: "There are upwards of twenty-five negro merchants in Xenia, O., with an average capital invested of $50; about ten merchants who have invested upward of $1,000 each. One of the most successful merchants in Greene county is William S. Anderson, grocer, of Wilberforce. He does a business of about $5,000 a year. Jordan Robb, of Xenia, does a business of about $4,000 a year in purely a negro settlement. The best blacksmiths in the city, of which there are four, are of the negro race. IN KENTUCKY AND ELSEWHERE. Dr. W. H. Ballard, of Lexington, Ky., is a druggist. He said that he could purchase large bills of drugs from any wholesale drug house in the world because of his substantial rating in the mercantile agencies. He said that only 5 per cent. of the colored merchants are rated on commercial agency books. This, he said, is one of the reasons why the negroes have failed in business in so many instances. The big wholesale houses, he said, do not have confidence ir the negro merchants who are not rated with commercial agencies. Dr. Ballard is the only negro member of the Druggists's Association of Kentucky, He said he means to follow the white man in his business as far as possible in all that is right, and to eschew him in all that is

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Cured Me Permanently.

"Your medicine is worth its weight in gold, and I cannot recommend it too highly for the good it has done me. I was troubled with heart disease complicated with a weak back and kidney complaint for a number of years. Although five of our best doctors waited on me I grew worse instead of better, until at last nothing seemed to do me any good. I had a rapid pulse varying from 104 to 150 beats per minute, a choking and burning sensation in the wind-pipe, and pain in the heart. At the time I began taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure I weighed but 130 pounds. After using the remedies six months I weighed 189 pounds and felt well, and strong and hearty. My nerve, heart and kidney troubles are all gone now and as this cure was performed nearly seven years ago I know that it is permanent."-Edward Knapp, Wilkers-

"For many years I have been a great sufferer from heart disease. I was subject to faint and sinking spells, with a clutching, oppressive or full feeling at the heart, that is difficult to describe. I was unable to attend to my household duties and was thoroughly wretched and miserable. I doctored with some of our best physicians but got no relief until I tried Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine. I experienced benefit from the first few doses and finally was completely cured."-Mrs. J. M. Holloway, Geneva, Ind. All druggists seil and guarantee first bot-tle Dr. Miles' Remedies. a file of this paper was requested to be given a permanent place as a part of Indiana history. Pursuant to this, a committee guidance of Mr. W. E. Henry, state librarian, and Miss Elrod, assistant, made a tour of this most interesting institution. The salient feature of the library is the long double row of the portraits of the Governors of Indiana, beginning with William Henry Harrison and Francis Posey, the Territorial Governors, the latter in the elaborate garb of the post-revolutionary period. Then follow the early Governors in their high stocks; a splendid body of men, their fine character plainly evinced in their features. But this same character is not confined to the early Governors. Indiana's entire gubernatorial body, as represented in this gallery, is beyond criticism in point of strong and manly comeliness. Thomas A. Hendricks takes the lead in really classic beauty, but his portrait has many good sec-

The books of Indiana authors will astonish the unthinking Hoosier, who, if asked run out by the time he has counted the fingers of both hands. There are long shelves filled with volumes written in every period of Indiana's life. Histories, biographies, poetry, esays and novels jostle one another on these fascinating shelves; the place is simply a treasure-trove for any one seeking data about the intellectuality, past and present, of Indiana. In addition to this most important feature, all directories of Indiana cities and counties, all cyclopaedias of biography, are assiduously collected and preserved. Early pamphlets, autograph letters, documents now out of print, are to be seen in this conservatory of Indiana's archives. There are also many books of general literature, purchased for various reasons, fine engravings, maps and bound volumes of papers; in fact, it would take many a long visit to be able to even briefly recount the valuable things upon the shelves of the State library. Mr. Henry expressed the wish that i might become more generaly a receptacle for valuable relics connected with the State's history; he displayed a quaint old coat of red and blue serge, such as had been worn by the militia so long age as 1823, and which had been bought for 50 cents. The old garment had evidently been made by a woman and fastened up in front with a ladylike row of hooks and eyes. Mr. Henry feels certain that stored away in attics and warehouses are many things which should be permanertly placed in this li-brary and he would be glad to have them as loans, if they cannot be presented. Very recently the women of Fort Wayne were commended in an Indianapolis paper for their zeal concerning their city's history. Why should not all Indiana women be deeply, vitally interested in helping to preserve all the State's heirlooms in this most suitable depository In receiving the file of the Chronicle the librarian thanked his visitors warmly, assuring them that he considered it a valuable addition to his collection and when the committee said "good afternoon," it had the gratification of seeing the September number of the Chronicle with Bishop Francis on its first page, flanked on one side by the New England Magazine and or
